Express with Ease: An Ideal School: Student's Perspective.

Main Takeaway

Peers set an informal environment where children create lifetime memories. As such, institutions must look at holding conducive environments with nonjudgmental thinking and co-learning.

Introduction

We are quick to expect children to adapt to their schools, but not expect schools to adapt to their students. For a school or classroom to work as a learning space for a child it has to be a good match with the child's needs, as well as the child's personality. How do the students perceive an ideal school environment? Is it build safe learning spaces for students? Or one that attracts teachers who are knowledgeable, care about student learning and adapt their instruction to meet the needs of their learners? We shall unravel this and more in our latest Express with Ease session "An Ideal School: Student's Perspective" with Ms. Alysa Gupta, Ms. Juhi Purohit, Ms. Sarah Kadu, and Mr. Vansh Patel of Dr. Pillai Global Academy, Maharashtra, on the 19th of March at 5:00 PM.

Takeaway Learnings

- An ideal school values a student's interest. Opportunities presented without discrimination are the support most children expect from institutions.
- An educational institution must instill life-skill learning for the holistic development of a child.
- In a class, teachers must understand the emotional differences in every pupil.
- Not only does a institution play a pivotal role in letting children pursue their dreams, but to find and create one with them.
- A choice-based curriculum is now a dream come true, thanks to the NEP 2020.
- Teachers enable warmth and personalized teaching for all children in a school.
- Comfort originates when the bond between the teacher and student through open conversations revives.
- The tool of interactive teaching helps to learn and teach in a digital age.
- Parents need to provide emotional support for their children. They must become development partners and analyze, think, and design alternative solutions to temporary breakdowns.
- Gender biases and groupings at school restricts growth.
- Career counseling helps students to reach or discover their dreams. Open-mindedness and one-on-one conversations drive such initiatives.
- The ties between various factors and flexibility in a school make children look forward to an enriching educational experience.
